'We want to invest in high-quality businesses that are able to compound their cash flows over the long term, and we want to invest in them at reasonable prices. It's not just about having a high return on invested capital today, but more importantly, that it will last a significant period into the future. We want to see that durability of return.'

– Chris Elliot, Portfolio Manager

How this fund invests:

- This fund invests only in high-quality companies that operate in growing sectors, have low capital costs, durable competitive advantages, and reinvest in their own growth.
- This approach, known as quality investing, has been proven to contribute to investment performance over time as these businesses are able to continually grow their profits.
- The fund places a great deal of emphasis on analysing not just each company's current quality but what threats it might face and how well it will be able to continue to perform into the future.
- Led by portfolio managers Chris Elliot and James Knoedler, Evenlode takes a team-based approach to finding new ideas, conducting a thorough analysis, and identifying the right price at which to buy the shares they hold.
