Peer group: Dynamic Planner Risk Profile 5. Performance is calculated on a total return basis in GBP terms. The value of the underlying funds and the income generated from them can go down as well as up, and is not guaranteed. Investors may not get back the original amount invested. The value of investments involving exposure to foreign currencies can be affected by currency exchange rate fluctuations. Past performance is not a guide to future performance.

Monthly commentary

- Global markets delivered strong but uneven returns in 2025, shaped by significant volatility early in the year and a powerful recovery thereafter. Global equities ended the year higher, with US equities up 9.7% despite suffering one of their sharpest two-day declines on record in April following the announcement of sweeping US tariffs. Markets proved resilient as trade tensions eased and growth held up, while global bond markets also posted positive returns as inflation declined and central banks began to ease policy.
- Equity leadership remained narrow, with AI driving returns and a small number of megacaps accounting for a large share of US market gains. Unlike recent years, returns stemmed more from earnings growth than valuation expansion, while non-US markets outperformed as a weaker dollar supported broader participation.
- Sector performance reflected these trends, with communication services (+21.9%) and IT leading (+15.1%), supported by financials as rates fell and curves steepened. Defensive consumer sectors lagged on softer spending, while gold (+53.1%) surged on dollar weakness and heightened macro uncertainty.
- Bond markets were generally supportive. US Treasuries delivered positive returns, while credit markets benefited from strong income and tight spreads. Emerging market hard-currency debt was the strongest-performing fixed income asset class, supported by US rate cuts and a softer dollar. In contrast, Japanese and European government bonds underperformed as long-term yields rose amid policy normalisation and fiscal concerns.
- In the UK, markets were shaped by persistent fiscal challenges and stubborn inflation. The Bank of England began cutting rates but adopted a cautious tone as inflation risks remained elevated, while long-dated gilt yields rose sharply to multi-decade highs. UK equities delivered modest but positive returns, supported by attractive valuations and improving earnings expectations, though domestic growth remained subdued.
- Looking ahead, easing financial conditions, selective fiscal support and rising investment, particularly in AI and infrastructure, provide a constructive backdrop for 2026. Nevertheless, elevated valuations, market concentration and fiscal risks suggest volatility is likely. A diversified and selective approach remains essential as opportunities are expected to emerge amid periodic market setbacks.

Important information

Fact sheet asset allocation percentages are in some cases based on the normalised (or benchmark) asset allocations of investee funds, as opposed to the actual exposures of those funds at the date of the fact sheet. This reflects the expected average allocation over time which will result from decisions to hold particular funds.

If you are considering investing in the Momentum Managed Portfolios clients should consult a suitably qualified and approved Financial Adviser. The performance shown represents performance of the Managed Portfolios that are periodically restructured and rebalanced based on the impact of material, economic and market factors that influence MGIM's decision-making on asset allocation. The Managed Portfolios are applied to client accounts by the platform provider but it may take some time for the client accounts to mirror the performance of the Managed Portfolios. It is for this reason that client accounts may not have achieved exactly the same returns as the Managed Portfolios. The performance of the Managed Portfolios is based on the actual performance of the underlying funds included in the portfolios. These performance figures have not been audited by an external body. The value of investments may go down as well as up and the value will depend on fluctuations in financial markets outside MGIM's control, as a result an investor may not get back the amount invested.
