

Momentum Global Model Portfolio 4

29 November 2024

For professional advisors only

INVESTMENT OBJECTIVE & STRATEGY

This Portfolio has a moderately cautious investment strategy by holding assets at the lower end of the risk spectrum. This Portfolio will tend to be biased towards higher quality fixed income instruments and lower beta global equities.

Performance is calculated on a total return basis in GBP terms. The value of the underlying funds and the income generated from them can go down as well as up, and is not guaranteed. Investors may not get back the original amount invested. The value of investments involving exposure to foreign currencies can be affected by currency exchange rate fluctuations.

Past performance is not a guide to future performance.

MONTHLY COMMENTARY

- The upcoming US leadership change intensified global economic and geopolitical uncertainty during the month. President-elect Trump's proposed policies – tax cuts, deregulation, protectionism, and tighter immigration controls – could boost US growth and earnings but they also raise inflation risks, leading to a slower pace of rate cuts from the Fed and strengthening the dollar.
- Outside the US, Europe and China appear vulnerable. Tariff threats could weigh on growth, while Europe's fiscal challenges and political stagnation persist. The UK, despite being less exposed to US tariffs, faces similar high-tax, low-growth dynamics. In contrast, US economic resilience seems likely to continue.
- Global equities remain on track for a second consecutive year of double-digit returns, far outpacing bonds. Gold is the only major asset class to outperform equities, gaining nearly 30% year-to-date, despite falling -2.6% in November. The 'Trump trade' drove the US equity market 7.0% higher in November while most markets in Europe and Asia have drifted lower in recent weeks with global emerging markets falling by -2.6% over the month.
- Elsewhere, bond markets returned 0.5% over the month as measured by the ICE BofA Global Broad Market index, with UK gilts and UK investment grade corporate returning 1.8% and 1.6% respectively. US Treasuries and US investment grade bonds returned 2.0% and 2.5%, with the dollar rising 1.3% against the pound.
- Market expectations have shifted since the election, with US equities climbing, the dollar strengthening, and bond yields rising as inflation forecasts increase. Rate cuts from the Fed are now expected to be slower, with only 3-4 reductions anticipated by end-2025. As the "Trump trade" plays out, investors may adopt a wait-and-see approach heading into the new year.
- While risks remain – potential policy missteps, geopolitical flare-ups, and market overvaluation in areas like crypto and megacap tech – opportunities persist. The bond market sell-off has improved fixed income valuations, while equity valuations outside the US appear attractive. We remain cautiously optimistic for 2025, expecting continued but more volatile equity market gains, driven by a broader range of sectors beyond tech.

IMPORTANT INFORMATION

Fact sheet asset allocation percentages are in some cases based on the normalised (or benchmark) asset allocations of investee funds, as opposed to the actual exposures of those funds at the date of the fact sheet. This reflects the expected average allocation over time which will result from decisions to hold particular funds. If you are considering investing in the Momentum Global Model Portfolios clients should consult a suitably qualified and approved Financial Adviser. The performance shown represents performance of the Global Model Portfolios that are periodically restructured and rebalanced based on the impact of material, economic and market factors that influence MGIM's decision-making on asset allocation. The Global Model Portfolios are applied to client accounts by the platform provider but it may take some time for the client accounts to mirror the performance of the Global Model Portfolios. It is for this reason that client accounts may not have achieved exactly the same returns as the Global Model Portfolios. The performance of the Global Model Portfolios is based on the actual performance of the underlying funds included in the portfolios. These performance figures have not been audited by an external body. The value of investments may go down as well as up and the value will depend on fluctuations in financial markets outside MGIM's control, as a result an investor may not get back the amount invested.
